

I broke my sleep cycle at four am.
So I went to fetch a glass of cold water.
White light washed the kitchenette as
I opened the refrigerator.
It is the same light coming from my screen.
Same one I see in my sleep.
Everyday.

It is not unlike the light that will rise up with the sun at six twenty-two today.
And tomorrow.
And so on.